

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 17, 2004

Even Military Families Agree More Troops Needed in Iraq

by Michael in New York on 10/17/2004 02:27:00 AM

Duh, you say, since top military and civilian officials have all said we needed -- and need -- more troops to win the peace in Iraq. But it's good to know even the staunch pro-war, pro-Bush families of the military recognize reality.

The fascinating LA Times poll has a lot more interesting nuggets.

"While members of the military and their families strongly support the war in Iraq, a strong majority say the Administration underestimated the number of troops needed to win, according to a national poll of service men and women and their families. Sixty-two percent of a military sample polled by the University of Pennsylvania's National Annenberg Election Survey said the Bush administration had too few troops to Iraq. And respondents said the war has placed too much of a burden on inadequately trained and equipped National Guard and Reserve forces, who make up almost 50% of soldiers currently fighting in Iraq," reports the LA Times.

On hiding the coffins of fallen soldiers from the American people:

"The respondents also overwhelmingly disagreed with the Pentagon policy of barring photographs of flag-draped coffins being returned to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware. Fifty-one percent of the military sample said allowing photographs would increase respect for the sacrifices made by the military. Only 8% said it would reduce respect."

On whether Bush is taking care of ill veterans:

"Only 30% said they thought veterans were getting the health care they had been promised. And while 57% said that Pentagon-ordered extensions of service beyond enlistment dates were proper, 39%, a significant minority, said they were not."

On gays in the military:

"The poll's findings on attitudes toward gays in the military also showed striking differences by rank. Commissioned officers and their families opposed their inclusion by 53% to 39%. Noncommissioned officers and their families were also clearly opposed, by a 57% to 35% margin. But 50% of junior enlisted personnel said gays and lesbians should be allowed to serve openly, while 43% said they should not."

On women in the military:

"Once divisive, the military sample overwhelmingly approved of the work of women in the armed forces. Seventy-four percent said they performed as well as the men they served with, 10% said they did worse than men, and 7% said they did better than men."

What does the length of your fingers say about your personality?

Take a FREE personality test to find your

JOHN'S PHOTOS

HOT OFF THE WIRE

Daily Kos
Open Thread and Diary Rescue - *Tonight's Rescue Rangers are Louisiana 1976, jlms qkw, shayera, dopper0189, ybruti, and srkp23 with vcmv02 editing.* ~ World order will be secured only ...
8 minutes ago

Eschaton
The Stupids - When I was growing up what always pissed me off more than anything was when my sense of justice was violated. I'm not claiming that my sense of such things...
40 minutes ago

Crooks and Liars
Open Thread - Blog Against Theocracy, a blogswarm in favor of separation of church and state, is this weekend. Open Thread below.
58 minutes ago

HuffPost Politics
Norman Solomon: Democrats and War Escalation - Top Democrats and many prominent supporters - with vocal agreement, tactical quibbles or total silence - are assisting the escalation of the U.S. war effort...
1 hour ago

Firedoglake
Late Nite: Michele Bachmann Stars in "Birth of an Aberration" - Minnesota's wackiest export treads the boards of the Wingnut dinner theater.
1 hour ago

Show All

AMERICABLOG TV

Next 6