If The Iraqis Were Voting In OUR Election

by Michael in New York on 10/28/2004 11:05:00 PM

Bush is lining up support all over the world. He's got the endorsement of the Iranian theocracy, the Islamic terrorists in Spain, and presumably the freedom-lovers in Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, two of our biggest allies/enemies in the war on terror.

But oddly, the people he's spent $200 billion (and counting) and more than a thousand dead US soldiers to free don't want him reelected. Surely if Bush could expect the support of ANYONE in the world it should have been the Iraqis right?

But USA Today says a new poll of Iraqis shows most don't care who wins the US presidential election and of those that do, it's about 56% for Kerry vs. 40% for Bush. Here's hoping folks here in the USA vote the same way.
