

ON TV THIS WEEK

SUNDAY, FEB. 11

► "Grease: You're the One That I Want" Andrew Lloyd Webber is a guest judge. Softly, deftly, music shall caress you, Sir Andrew. (NBC, 7 p.m.)

■ "The Simpsons" Lisa pretends to be part-Indian so she can be a success on her school's multicultural day, while Bart sees his own Mrs. Robinson in an older woman — voiced by Natalie Portman. (Fox, 8 p.m.)

MONDAY, FEB. 12

► "Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show" The 131st annual canine competition features more than 2,500 dogs of 165 breeds, all competing for Best in Show at Madison Square Garden. Vegas is paying attention: For the first time, odds are being posted on the favorites. (USA, 8 p.m.)

■ "24" A double dose of Jack Bauer tonight, as the President gets second-guessed for the handling of the terrorist crisis, then a shady arms dealer tries to find a specialist who can trigger nuclear bombs. Powers Boothe (as the VP) and Chad Lowe are among the never-ending stream of guest stars. (Fox, 8 p.m.)

TUESDAY, FEB. 13

■ "Gilmore Girls" Lorelai and Christopher argue over her still-tender feelings for Luke, while her dad, Richard, recovers from surgery. When did this once-delightful romantic comedy get so soapy? (The CW, 8 p.m.)

■ "Frontline" The first of a three-part series covering the news media and how it works with — and against — the Bush administration in an age of anonymous sources, classified documents and citizens' right to know. But you didn't hear that from us. (PBS, 9 p.m.)

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 14

■ "George Lopez" Will George lie for Benny (Belita Moreno) on the stand when even her trial lawyer (poker-faced former Batman Adam West) and her mom (Rita Moreno) won't? (ABC, 8 p.m.)

■ "Lost" What do you know — an episode of "Lost" that features a fair chunk of the original castaways, including Hurley (Jorge Garcia) and Charlie (Dominic Monaghan). The Others seem to be elsewhere, for now. Enjoy it while you can. (ABC, 10 p.m.)

THURSDAY, FEB. 15

■ "CSI" Grissom (William L. Petersen) finds it a little disturbing when someone sends him a package containing a miniature crime scene for a murder that hasn't taken place yet. (CBS, 9 p.m.)

■ "My Name Is Earl!" Beau Bridges is the latest guest star to get all white-trashy on an episode where Earl (Jason Lee) wants to celebrate his birthday but keeps being reminded of his many, many failings. (NBC, 8 p.m.)

■ "Michael Jordan Celebrity Invitational" The sports great's sixth annual golf tournament in the Bahamas lures Derek Jeter, Mario Lemieux, Samuel L. Jackson and other celebs onto the links. C'mon guys, golf like Mike. (ESPN, 9 p.m.)

► "The O.C." Earthquakes? Women trapped in dangerous locations? Unborn babies that may not survive? When did this soap get so ... soapy? (Fox, 9 p.m.)

FRIDAY, FEB. 16

■ "Real Time With Bill Maher" All the humor of Jon Stewart combined with the pointed questioning of Ted Koppel — plus, a lot more cursing. Yep, Maher is back for a new season. (HBO, 11 p.m.)

■ "Las Vegas" Ed (James Caan) runs into trouble, and a lot of attitude, when he tries to fire his housekeeper, played by Sandra Bernhard. (NBC, 9 p.m.)

SATURDAY, FEB. 17

■ "Mad TV" Lisa Donovan — aka Lisa Nova on YouTube — becomes perhaps the first comedy artist to jump from the Web to television, as she joins the show's cast. Start filming those great ideas you've got, someone might actually be watching! (Fox, 11 p.m.)

■ "Alpine World Championships" Olympic flake Bode Miller (who had fun partying but didn't medal at the Turin Olympics) looks to redeem himself, but still have fun, in Sweden. (NBC, 2:30 p.m.)

■ "NBA All-Star Saturday Night" A slam-dunk contest, along with the pairing of NBA legends with current stars from the NBA and the WNBA. (TNT, 8:30 p.m.)
